

and two previous poetry books. Her recent work can be found in the Cimarron Review, Interim, The Massachusetts Review, Nimrod, Paperbark, Typo, and upcoming in antiphony, Fou, and Mid-American Review. She lives in North Carolina with her partner and a houseful of plants and animals.

Nick Otte's writing has appeared in Boulevard, Electric Literature, The Baltimore Review, Tahoma Literary Review, Words Without Borders, and elsewhere. He earned his MFA at the City College of New York in Harlem and taught writing at CCNY, Baruch College, Lehman College, and developed creative writing workshops with the Bay Area Writing Project at UC Berkeley. He lives in Brooklyn and is currently working on his debut novel.

Leslie Pietrzyk has published three novels and two linked story collections, Admit This to No One (Unnamed Press, 2021) and This Angel on My Chest (Drue Heinz Literature Prize; UPittsburgh Press, 2015). Fiction has appeared in Ploughshares, Story Magazine, Hudson Review, and elsewhere. She lives in North Carolina.

Melissa Pritchard (judge, Arts & Letters Prize for Fiction) is the author of twelve books, including the novels Flight of the Wild Swan and Palmerino, the short story collection The Odditorium, and the essay collection A Solemn Pleasure: To Imagine, Witness, and Write. Among other honors, she has received the Flannery O'Connor Award, Janet Heidinger Kafka Prize, and the Carl Sandburg Literary Award as well as fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Carson McCullers Center. Emeritus Professor of English and Women's Studies at Arizona State University, she is the fiction editor for Image journal and lives in Columbus, Georgia. Recipient of three Pushcart and two O. Henry Prizes, her short story collection, The Carnation Milk Palace will be published by Bellevue Literary Press in January 2027.

Marin Sardy is the author of the memoir The Edge of Every Day (2019) and co-creator of the Substack Psychic Telephone. Sardy's essays have appeared in